

360 Leadership Coaching

The best way for a company to invest in a manager is to help them to focus on maximizing their strengths. 360 Leadership Coaching works to help the manager understand their own unique strengths and build a sure-fire plan to leverage those strengths to be more productive and successful.

Different than other performance surveys, it starts with a clear understanding of the manager's innate talents, identified using the Operations Management Talent Assessment and the Management Talent Assessment.

"I feel any program that allows a manager to take a look at their style through the eyes of the people they manage is always beneficial. I picked up some great takeaways that I will continue to use to further improve my management style and the success of our team!" - Sales Manager
